NOTE FROM JODI OPPENHUIZEN:

If a group of Christians came together to compile ideas on how to fulfill the Great Commission, perhaps they would have comments like these:

- "We need to reach people in the 10/40 Window, the world's most unreached."
- "We need to reach out to the local people."
- "We need to help existing ministries already trying to reach others."
- "We need to reach the next generation."
- "We need to have some way to attract people and bring them together."
- "We need to be able to work with people during a period of time and teach and mentor them."
- "We need Christians to be able to work together from multiple churches and organizations."

At the Christian International School of Prague...

- One-third of our students are from countries in the 10/40 window.
- About 10 percent of our students are Czech, and there are opportunities to reach out to others in the Prague community.
- Some kids of missionaries attend the school; some staff members work in the school and local ministries.
- Our students are the next generation of kids ages 6-19.
- Our admissions demand is the highest in our school's history.
- The average length of time that students spend at our school is about three years.
- Our staff members come from multiple church denominations and Christian organizations and serve together for the glory of God.

The harvest is plentiful, but the workers are few.
